FORK'S HOTEL,
GEORGE W. MAUGER, Proprietor.

The above well-known hotel has recently undergone radical changes in its internal arrangements, and its proprietor announces to his former custom and the travelling public that his accomodations for the comfort of his guests are second to none in the country. His table will always be found supplied, not only with substantial food, but with all the delicacies of the season. His wines and liquors (except that popular beverage known as "McHenry"), purchased direct from the importing houses, are entirely pure, and free from all poisonous drugs. He is thankful for a liberal patronage in the past, and will continue to deserve it in the future. GEORGE W. MAUGER.

COLUMBIA HOUSE,
BY
BERNARD STOHNER.

HAVING lately purchased and fitted up the well-known Robbins Hotel Property, located a FEW DOORS ABOVE THE COURT HOUSE,
on the same side of the street, in the town of Bloomsburg, and having obtained a license for the same as a RESTAURANT,
the Proprietor has determined to give to the people visiting the town on business or pleasure,
A LITTLE MORE ROOM.
His stabling also is extensive, and is fitted up to put buggies and carriages in the city. He promises that every thing about his establishment shall be conducted in an orderly and lawful manner, and he respectfully solicits a share of the public patronage. may27'67-tf.

EXCHANGE HOTEL,
BLOOMSBURG, COLUMBIA CO., PA.

The undersigned having purchased this well-known and centrally-located house, the Exchange Hotel, situate on MAIN STREET, in Bloomsburg immediately opposite the Columbian county Court House, respectfully inform their friends and the public in general that their house is now in order for the reception and entertainment of travellers who may be disposed to favor it with their custom. They have spared no expense in preparing the Exchange for the entertainment of their guests neither shall there be anything wanting on their part to minister to their personal comfort. They house is spacious, and enjoys an excellent business location.

Omnibuses run at all times between the Exchange Hotel and the various railroad depots, by which travellers will be pleasantly conveyed to and from the respective stations in due time to meet the cars. KOONS & CLARK.

Choice Poetry.

SHAMUS O'BRIEN'S HANGING.

The following celebrated poem is too good to pass by. As historical in character, and illustrative of the tyranny of officials and government at the time it is valuable; and then written in such peculiar style, with its wit, humor and eloquence, it has few if any equals. Read it and you will want to read it again.

Just afther the war, in the year '69,
As soon as the boys were all scattered and bate,
'Twas the custom whenever a pisant was got,
To hang him by thrial harrin' sich as was shot.
There was thrial by jury goin' on by daylight,
And the martial law hangin' the lavies by night.
It's thim was hard times for an honest gossoon;
If he missed in the judge—he'd meet a dragoon;
An' whether the sojers or judges gev sentence,
The divil a much time they allowed fur repentance.
An' its many's the fine boy was thin for his keepin',
Wid small share of restin', or atin', or sleepin',
An' because they loved Erin, an' scorned to sell it,
A prey for the blood hound, a mark for the bullet—
Unsheltered by night, and narested by day,
With the heath for their barracks revenge for their pay;
An' the bravest and hardiest boy iv them all
Was SHAMUS O'BRIEN, from the town iv Ghogall.
His limbs were well set, an' his body was light,
An' the keen-fanged hound had not teeth half so white;
But his face was as pale as the face of the dead,
And his cheek never warmed with the blush of the red;
An' for all that he wasn't an ugly young bye,
For the divil himself couldn't blaze with his eye,
So droll an' so wicked, so dark an' so bright,
Like a fire flash that crosses the depths of the night;
An' he was the best mower that ever has been,
And the illigantest hurler that ever was seen.
In fencin' he gev Patrick Mooney a cut,
An' in jumpin' he bate Tom Malowney a fut;
For lightness iv fut there was not his peer,
For, by gorra, he'd almost outrun the red deer,
An' his dancin' was sich that the men used to stare,
An' the women turned crazy, he done it so square;
An' by gorra the whole world gev it into him there.
An' it's he was the boy that was hard to be caught,
An' it's many's the one can remember quite well
The quare things he done; an' its oft I heerd tell,
How he freckened the magistrates in Cahirlally,
An' escaped through the sojers in Aberloe Valley;
An' lathered the yeomen, himself agin' four,
An' stretched the two strongest on auld Galtimore.
But the fox must sleep sometimes, the wild deer must rest,
An' treachery prey on the blood iv the best.
Afther many a brave action of power and pride,
An' many a hard night on the mountain's bleak side,
An' a thousand great dangers and toils overpast,
In the darkness of night he was taken at last.
Now, Shamus, look back on the beautiful moon,
For the door of the prison must close on you soon,
An' take your last look at her dim lovely light,
That falls on the mountain and valley this night—
One look at the village, one look at the flood,
An' one at the sheltering, far distant wood,
Farewell to the forest, farewell to the hill,
An' farewell to the friends that will think of you still.
Farewell to the pathern, the hurlin' an' wake,
An' farewell to the girl that would die for your sake.
An' twelve sodgers brought him to the Mary borough jail;
An' the turnkey reaved him, refusin all bail,
The fleet limbs wor chained, and the sthrong hands wor bound,
An' he laid down his length on the cold prison ground,
An' the dreams of his childhood kem over him there,
As gentle an' soft as the sweet summer air;
An' happy remembrances crowding on ever,
As fast as the foam flakes drift down on the river,
Bringing fresh to his heart merry days long gone by,
Till the tears gathered heavy and thick in his eye.
But the tears didn't fall, for the pride at his heart
Would not suffer one drop down his pale cheek to start;
An' he sprang to his feet in the dark prison cave,
Ily the hopes of the good, an' the cause of the brave,
An' he swore with the fierceness that misery gave
That when he was mouldering in the cold grave
His enemies never should have it to boast,
His scorn for their vengeance one moment was lost;
His bosom might bleed, but his cheek would be dhry,
For undaunted he lived, and undaunted he'd die.
As soon as a few were over and gone,
The terrible day iv the thrial kem on;
There was sich a crowd there was scarce room to stand,
An' sodgers on guard, an' dragoons sword in hand;
An' the court house so full that the people were bothered,
An' attorneys, an' criers an the point of bein' smothered;
An' counsellors almost gave over for dead,
An' the jury sittin' up in their box overhead;
An' the judge settled out so determined an' big,
With his gown on his back and an illigant new wig;
An' silence was called, an' the minit was said
The court was as still as the heart of the dead,
An' they heard but the openin' of one prison lock,
An' Shamus O'Brien came into the dock.
For one minute he turned his eye round on the throng,
An' he looked at the bars so firm and so strong.
An' he saw that he had not a hope era friend,
A chance to escape nor a word to defend;
An' he folded his arms as he stood there alone,
As calm and as cold as a statue of stone;
An' they read a big writin', a yard long at laste,
An' Jim didn't understand it, nor mind it a taste,
An' the Judge took a pinch iv snuff, an' he says,
"Are you guilty or not, Jim O'Brien as you plase?"
An' all held their breath in the silence of dhread,
An' Shamus O'Brien made answer and said:
"My lord, if you ask me, if in my lifetime
I thought any treason, or did any crime
That should call to my cheek, as I stand alone here,
The hot blush of shame, or the coldness of fear,
Though I stood at the grave to receive my death blow,
Before God and the world I would answer you no;
But if you would ask me, as I think it like,
If in the rebellion I carried a pike,
An' fought for ould Ireland from the first to the close,
An' shed the heart's blood of her bitterest foes,
I answer you, yes, and I tell you again, glory then
In her cause I was willing my veins should run dhry,
An' now for her sake I am ready to die."
The silence was great and the jury smiled bright,
An' the judge wasn't sorry the job was made light;
Though I stand here to perish, it's my By my sowl, its himself was the crabbed ould chap,
In a twinklin' he pulled on his ugly black cap,
Then Shamus' mother in the crowd standin' by,
Called out to the judge with a pitiful cry:
"O! Judge darlin,' don't, oh! don't say the word,
The crathur is young, have mercy, my lord;
He was foolish, he didn't know what he was doin;'
You don't know him, my lord, oh! don't give him to ruin;
He's the kindliest crathur, the tenderest hearted;
Don't part us forever, we that's so long parted.
Judge, mavourneen, forgive him, forgive him, 'my lord.
An' God will forgive you, oh! don't say the word!"
Thar was the first minute that O'Brien was shaken,
When he saw that he was not quite forgot or forsaken,
An' down his pale cheek at the word of his mother,
The big tears wor runnin' fast, one afther th' other;
An' two or three times he endeavored to speak,
But the sthrong, manly voice used to falthur and break;
But at last by the strength of his high mounting pride,
He conquered and masthered his grief's swellin' tide,
An', says he "mother darlin,' don't break your poor heart,
For sooner or later, the dearest must part;
An' God knows it's better than wandering in fear,
On the bleak, trackless mountain among the wild deer.
To lie in the grave, where the head, heart and breast
From thought, labor and sorrow forever shall rest.
Then mother, my darlin' don't cry any more,
Don't make me seem broken, in this, my last hour,
For I wish when my head's lyin' under the raven,
No true man can say that I died like a craven!"
Then towards the judge Shamus bent down his head,
An' that minute the solemn death sentence was said.
The mornin' was bright, an' the mist rose on high,
An' the lark whistled merrily in the sky,
But, why are the men standing idle so late?
An' why do the crowds gather fast in the street?
What come they to talk of? what come they to see?
An' why does the long rope hang from the cross tree?
O, Shamus O'Brien! pray fervent and fast,
May the saints take your soul, for this day is your last:
Pray fast an' pray sthrong, for the moment is nigh,
When sthrong, proud an' great as you are you must die.
An' faster an' faster the crowd gathered there,
Boys, horses, and gingerbread just like a fair:
An' whiskey was sellin' an' cussamuck too,
An' ould men and young women enjoying the view.
An' ould Tim Mulvaney, he med the remark,
There wasn't sich a sight since the time of Noah's ark;
An' be gorry, 'twas thrue for him, for divil sich a scourge,
Sich divarshin and crowds was known since the deluge,
For thousands were gathered there, if there was one,
Waitin' till such time as the hangin' id come on;
At last they threw open the big prison gate,
An' out came the sheriffs and sodgers in state,
An' a cart in the middle, an' Shamus was in it:
Not peler, but prouder than ever, that minute.
An' as soon as the people saw Shamus O'Brien,
Wid prayin' and blessin', and all the girls cryin:
A wild wailin' sound kem on by degrees,
Like the sound of the lonesome wind blowin' through trees.
On, to the gallows the sheriffs are gone,
An' the cart an' the sodgers go steadily on;
An' at every side swellin' around of the cart,
A wild sorrowful sound that id open your heart.
Now under the gallows the cart takes its stand,
An' the hangman gets up with the rope in his hand:
An' the priest havin' blest him, goes down on the ground,
An' Shamus O'Brien throws one last look around.
Then the hangman drew near, an' the people grew still,
Young faces turned sickly, and warm hearts turned chill:
An' the rope bein' ready his neck was made bare,
For the gripe of the life strangling rope to prepare;
But the good priest done more, for his hands he unbound,
An' with one daring spring Jim has leaped on the ground;
Bang! bang! goes the carbines, and clash goes the sabres,
He's not down! he's alive still! now stand to him, neighbors;
Through the smoke and horses he's into the crowd,
By the heavens he's free, than thunder more loud.
By one shout from the people the heavens were shaken—
One shout that the dead of the world might awaken.
But if you want hangin, 'its yourself you must hang;
To-night he'll be sleepin' in Aherloe Glin,
An' the divils in the dice if you catch him agin,
The sodgers ran this way, the sheriffs ran that,
An' the sheriffs were both of them punished severely,
An' fined like the divil, because Jim done them so fairly.
A week after this time—without firin' a cannon,
A sharp Yankee schooner sailed out of the Shannon,
An' the captain left word he was goin to Cork.
But the devil a bit—he was bound to New York;
An' that very night she ran so near land,
That some thought she would strike upon Galtimore strand;
But before the daylight, like a winged sea mew,
As swift and as fleet to the westward she flew.
"Bad luck," said the police—"bad luck," said the sojer,
"We thot that we had him"—but Jim proved a dodger.
The very next Spring—a bright mornin' in May,
Just six months after the great 'hanging' day,'
A letter was brought to the town of Kildare,
And on the outside was written out fair,
"To ould Mrs. O'Brien in Ireland or elsewhere,"
An' in the inside began: "My dear good auld mother,
I'm safe, an' happy—and not wishin' to bother
You in the radin'—with the help of the priest)
I send you enclosed in this lether at laist
Enuf—to pay him an' fetch ye away,
To this 'land of the free and brave'—Merrika.
Here you'll be happy, an' niver nade cryin'
So long as you're mother of Shamus O'Brien;
Give my love to swate Biddy, and tell her beware,
Of that spalpeen, who calls himself Lord of Kildare,'
And just say to the judge, I don't now care a rap
For him or his wig, or his dirty black cap;
An' as for the dragoons—them paid men of slaughther—
Say I love them, as the divil loves holy wather,
An' now, my good mother, one word of advice:
Take a bag of pratees an' eat meal an' rice,
Ax Father O'Connor when you pass thro Derry
To give you a line to his friend Captain Murray,
An' if he's not at Cork, then find Captain Skiddy,
They are both the right men to take care of a widdy,
For their hearts are so warm an' so kind my dear mother,
They will trate you exactly as if each was your brother;
An' wen ye start from auld Ireland take passage to Cork,
An' come strate over to the town of New York.
An' there ax the mayer the best way to go
To the State of Cincinnati, in the town of Ohio,
For 'tis there you will find me, without much thryin.'
At the 'Harp an' the Eagle'—kept by Shamus O'Brien.'

Miscellaneous.

An Awkard Predicament.

Out in Missouri lives a Mrs. Hempdale, who has or had a daughter named Laura, who loved a man named Jack. This man Jack she didn't like, but was informed by a neighbor that Jack and Laura had arranged a plan of elopement.

Her mind was quickly made up. She announced to Laura the next morning that she was going to Bellville on a visit, to be gone three days, and that she must be a good girl, and not tear the house down while she was gone.

That night Jack knew of it, and as he read that nice little note that bade him come over and stay until mother comes home, and what a splendid time we will have, he smiled, knocked the ashes off his cigar, and resolved on the course he would pursue.

Jack went over, but there is no earthly use in attempting to describe the delectable things he enjoyed; it was a sugar season at that plantation, sure.

Just before dusk, while Jack was running over full of the occasion, in rushes Laura's waiting woman with,

"Lor bress me, chil'n, of yer aint misses at de gate."

"My God! Dinah, what shall we do with Jack?"

"Pop him in de closet, Miss Laura," and Jack was popped in the closet in a twinkling of an eye.

In stalked the old lady, who sharply scrutinizing the disconcerted and blushing countenance of Laura, felt sure that Jack had been there.

"Come here, Laura. Now you can't deceive me. That abominable Plaine has been here, and you and he have fixed upon a runaway match to come off to-night; I know you see."

Laura was silent, and the old lady continued.

"But you'll find your mother is no fool, and too sharp for you my lady. Sooner than you should marry that miserable Jack Plaine, I'd see you laid in your grave. He is not going to squander my money I assure you."

The old lady rose, and going to a clothes press returned with several comforts and a pillow.

Then walking up to the closet where Jack was concealed, threw them in and said to Laura.

"Now march in here Miss, step along; I'll look out that you don't see that low-born mechanic this night."

Laura protested that she did not want to, declaring that her mother might be sorry for it some day.

But without paying any attention, her mother gave her a push, shut the door and locked it put the key in her pocket and went to bed.

Early in the morning the old lady arose, and without waiting to dress took the key from her pocket and opened the closet door to bid Laura come forth, gazed wildly for an instant and utterred a most piercing scream.

Recovering very rapidly, she started away from the door and called faintly to Laura:

"Laura, dear, go into the kitchen and see about breakfast."

Then presently:

"Jack, I say Jack."

Jack came forth with a son-in-law looking air, and answered:

"Well, madame, what is it?"

"Do you know anything about a farm?" said she.

"Nothing to brag of, ma'am," said Jack humbly.

"Well, at any rate, Jack, I think that after breakfast you and Laura may as well go down to the city and get married, for I am tired of watching you that's a fact."

'FRAID 'TWOULDN'T HOLD OUT.—A passenger on the Little Miami Railroad Lightning Express relates that one night an old negro, in droll alarm about the shortening of his through ticket, accosted him as follows:

"Look here, boss, I want to ax you a question. I's a good way from home, and wants to know if I's on the right track?"

"Where do you want to go, uncle?" we asked.

"To Fort Gibson, way down in Arkinsaw, sah. Now, boss, I's ignorant, and wants to know if I's on the right kear for Cincinnati."

We assured our negro friend he was all right for Cincinnati, when he broke loose as follows:—

"Look a here, boss, I doesn't know nothing when I's away from home—clean fact, sah. When I started out from Washington city I had a powerful long string of dese hear"—exhibiting that portion of his through ticket which had not been taken up. "Every now and then a gentleman comes 'round and tars off a little piece. Tell you, sah, it's gitten mighty short. 'Fraid it aint gwine to hold out until I gets through." This last remark created quite a laugh, in which the negro joined heartly.

THERE was not long since a devout but ignorant papist, dwelling in Spain. He perceived the necessity of his own private prayers to God, besides the paternosters, but so simple was he, that how to pray he knew not. Only every morning, humbly bending his knees and lifting up his hands and eyes to heaven, he would deliberately repeat the alphabet, "And now," he would say, "O good God, put these letters together to spell syllables, to spell words, to make such sense as may be most to thy glory and to my good."

FEEDING CHILDREN.—Children, who, while growing, must form more tissue than they waste, consume more food in proportion to their weight, and possess more active digestions than adults. They should have their meals with shorter intervals, and care should be taken to avoid all influences that may disturb digestion. Prominent among these is a deficiency of clothing. The human body, like any other thing of greater warmth than the surrounding air, has a constant tendency to part with its excess of heat by radiation, and to check this cooling process we envelop ourselves in non-conducting fabrics. It stands to reason that the greater the surface exposed the more rapidly will radiation occur; and yet we frequently see children with chest, arms, and legs bared by fashion, in the coldest weather, without regard to the general depression of temperature, which must also involve that of the digestive organs.

The diet of children should be regulated by a consideration of their functional capacities. In infancy, nature furnishes in the mother's milk all requisite elements in a condition requiring no mechanical treatment, but merely simple chemical action. A little later, as the first teeth begin to make their appearance, food easily separable may be allowed, and as the masticating apparatus advances towards perfection, articles

The Yerger Decision.

The decision of the Supreme Court in the Yerger case, is the chief topic of comment. Chief Justice Chase read an elaborate opinion to the effect that the Supreme Court of the United States has jurisdiction under the Constitution and Judiciary Act of 1789; and that the act of 1867, repealed by that of 1868, does not operate to take away the jurisdiction of this court in the matter of habeas corpus, which is among our most valuable rights, and which is guarded both by the Constitution and statute. The question of jurisdiction is the only point decided, as it was the only point argued. The next step is the argument upon the motion for the issuance of the writ of habeas corpus to bring the prisoner before the Court. This will bring up the whole question of the merits of the case, involving also the validity of certain parts of the Reconstruction acts. The prisoner was once brought before Judge Hill, of the United States District Court of Mississipui, who, upon hearing the return by General Ames, remanded him. His counsel then asked Judge Hill to certify the case to the Supreme Court, which he refused to do. They now ask for both a writ of certiorari and a writ of habeas corpus. The effect of the decision virtually is to bring all the cases of arrest and trial by military authority in the reconstructed States under the revision of the Supreme Court, and to declare virtually that the civil power has been at all times supreme in those regions and the military power subservient. It will be remembered that in the Mississippi injunction case the Court decided that it had no jurisdiction because it was a political case. In the M'Ardle case Congress cut the Gordian knot by repealing the clause of the act of 1865, which conferred jurisdiction on the United States District Courts in those States, and, consequently, appellate jurisdiction on the Supreme Court. But now the Supreme Court virtually decides that it has jurisdiction, notwithstanding such repeal. Chief Justice Chase delivered the opinion of the Court while Justice Swayne delivered a dissenting opinion, in which Justice Miller concurred. The vote stood 6 to 2. No time has been fixed for the hearing of the arguments on the motion for the writ.

The Gold Ring.

Our readers may remember that about a month ago, a combination of gold gamblers sent the price of gold up to 162½ in one day, ruining many people, unsettling trade, and carrying disaster through the whole country. An examination of the facts, and the testimony of competent witnesses prove that both Grant and his wife participated in this movement, and used the National Treasury for speculative purposes. Mr. Corbin, his brother-in-law, Gen. Butterfield, his Assistant Treasurer at New York, have been proven to have acted with him in this matter. The latter after demanding a trial by Court Martial (in which case Grant would select the officers), has resigned, hoping in this way to escape investigation. Both he and Corbin have been indicted before the Grand Jury.

Is not this a pretty spectacle for our people? A convicted liar as our Governor, and a gold and stock gambler, as well as an itinerant horse jockey for President! O tempora, O mores!

VIRGINIA U. S. SENATORS.—Lieutenant Governor John F. Lewis and Judge J. W. Johnson have been elected to represent Virginia in the U. S. Senate. They were both Union men during the war, have been Conservative since and will represent the native population of the State. The Radicals voted for Alexander Sharpe, a brother-in-law, of Grant's, and for L. P. Chambers. The election was decided by a strict party vote.

THE Treasury Department is just now exercised over the fact that it has received over ninety thousand dollars' worth of counterfeit bonds. These bonds were stricken off from the plates in government possession. How many thousands or millions there may be in the hands of the people, bought and paid for as genuine, no one can say. Evidently our Treasury Department has been a pretty costly and loosely managed concern, and is likely to remain so. It is about as well to make a change in the head of that concern.

THE CONTESTED ELECTION CASE IN PHILADELPHIA.—On Saturday last the decision in the contested election case in Philadelphia was rendered. Judges Allison, Ludlow, Pierce and Brewster were present. The news that the decision was to be rendered caused much excitement and a large crowd of spectators had collected. At noon every inch of space in the courtroom was occupied and it was all the tipstaves could do to preserve order. About twelve o'clock Judge Brewster, on behalf of the majority of the court, proceeded to read the opinion.

By the decision of the court, the following Democratic office holders were thrown out of office on account of frauds at the election one year ago: District Attorney Sheppard; City Solicitor Barger; Prothonotary Fletcher; Receiver of Taxes Melloy; City Commissioner Weaver; City Controller Getz.

By this decision all the county Democratic officers are thrown out except Mayor Fox. The result of the court gives Mayor Fox a majority of 68. All the Republicans are declared elected.

Judge Ludlow delivered a dissenting opinion, holding that no court, except one, had ever thrown out the votes of honest voters, where it resulted in the exclusion of the candidates returned as elected.

There is much excitement in Philadelphia over the decision.—Exchange.

THE New York World gives the following among its political items:

The total vote for State Senator in the Fifteenth Senatorial District of Pennsylvania was—Ex-United States Senator Buckalew (Democrat), 8,200; Whitmoyer (Republican) 6,493; Chalfant (bolting Democrat), 2, 093.

Baseness.

No sooner had Geary been declared elected than he devised means to drive from Harrisburg, the only honest and upright official there, his Attorney General. We have not space to give all the facts as published in the daily papers, but enough to bear out our frequent assertion that he is a constant liar, and that he holds no pledge sacred. He has lied to M'Clure, to Lowry, in fact to all his prominent supporters, and as we have shown, lied to our people in reference to the Orangeville School. Thank God! he is not our Governor. The guilt of his election rests upon the Republican party, and they are responsible that the pompous braggart now sits in the Executive chair. We first give Covode's letter and Brewster's answer:

PHILADELPHIA, July 30, 1869.

Hon. B. H. Brewster,

DEAR SIR:—After a full and free consultation with our political associates, who are anxious to secure the election of our mutual friend, we have come to the conclusion that your resignation as Attorney-General would go a long ways to strengthen him and add to the prospects of his election. I write thus freely because I know you, like myself, have only the good of our party at stake. This position has not been taken hastily, or without the approval of the Governor, who authorizes me to write this letter, Truly yours, JOHN COVODE,
Chairman State Central Committee.

LONG BRANCH, July 31, 1869,

To the Hon. John Covode, Chairman of the State Central Committee, Philadelphia, Pa.

SIR:—I have your letter of July 30, 1869. I decline to resign the office of Attorney-General at your request, or at the instance of, or on the decision of persons who are unnamed to me.

My course as Attorney-General has not been open to any criticism that merits such a request, and I will not consent to submit to an indignity that has been contrived by men who are hostile to me because I have served the party and the Governor with a fidelity that has frustrated their hostility to him and exposed their evil purposes. I am, etc.,
BENJAMIN HARRIS BREWSTER,

We next give a letter from M. B. Lowry, a Radical Senator from Erie county.

ERIE, August 13, 1869.

His Excellency Governor Geary,

DEAR SIR:—More than a month ago, I was informed that Brewster was to be sacrificed to appease M'Clure and Mann, on account of an old score, Cameron, on account of a new one, and Covode, because Brewster had decided against his right to a seat in Congress in the Foster contest.

I could not believe that you would consent to the sacrifice of so pure and devoted a friend at the instance of such a combination.

I wrote to you and you replied that there was nothing whatever in the report.

Before I received the letter, however, I met you in Harrisburg, and you contemptuously scouted at and scorned the idea of asking Mr. Brewster's resignation.

Judge of my surprise this morning, upon reading in the Observer, Mr. Covode's letter of July 30, to Mr. Brewster.

In my humble judgment, a grave error has been committed.

Mr. Brewster's integrity and ability are elements too valuable to your administration, to be thus treated. Still, if from any cause, or for any purpose you wanted his resignation, it should have been asked for by a different man, and in an altogether different way.

I do not know how Mr. Brewster may feel in regard to treatment which cannot be considered anything short of infamous; and yet, his treatment has not been as cruel as my own, if you authorized Mr. Covode to write such a letter, which I do not believe you could have done till I have better evidence than a newspaper article. Very respectfully yours,
M. B. LOWRY.

We give finally Geary's letter to Brewster, and the latter's scorching reply:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 21, 1869.

Hon. Benjamin Harris Brewster, Attorney-General:

DEAR SIR:—You have on several occasions told me that, whenever I might deem it to my interest, or to the welfare of the Commonwealth, you would at once relinquish the office of "Attorney-General" into my hands. That time has now arrived, and I, therefore, respectfully and earnestly request that you immediately tender to me your resignation, to take effect without delay. Your compliance will much oblige
Yours, etc.,
JOHN W. GEARY.

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GEN'RL.
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23, 1869.

To Gen. John W. Geary, Governor of Pennsylvania.

SIR:—Yesterday Mr. Harmer handed to me your letter of the 21st of October. It requires my resignation "immediately and without delay," and assigns no cause for the request. It is a peremptory demand most unusual among gentlemen, and uncalled for in this particular case.

After my receipt in July last of the letter of Mr. Covode, made public in the columns of the daily press, in which he requested my resignation, and assumed to do so by your authority, you sent a special message to me by Mr. Lewis Wain Smith, Deputy Attorney-General, desiring me not to regard his letter, and assuring me that it was unauthorized and that its publication was unauthorized. Notwithstanding that I felt a sense of wrong in your silence and neglect to make a public disclaimer of that letter, yet I submitted quietly for the sake of the party and its cause, knowing well that any agitation of the subject on my part would involve you and peril your election. This you applauded at Corry a fortnight ago, when, of your own accord, you came to see me, and when we last saw each other, and then you expressly said to me and Mr. Lowry, and, I believe, to General Kane, that our relations were unchanged; to me you said that all of the action of Mr. Covode, in the letter before mentioned, and in a telegram sent by him to me, and which I exhibited to you, was unauthorized, and you then in severe terms condemned his conduct as brutal and meriting punishment. You wished me to wait until after the election, when I might deal with these men who had put an affront on me. You then thanked me for the service I had rendered, and repeated your personal and official confidence in me and left me, making arrangements with me for an important official duty to be performed with you. To Mr. Cummings, who went to you, especially deputed by me, to confer with you on the subject about three weeks ago, you expressly iterated and reiterated your confidence in me, saying that you had no cause of complaint, and no wish to remove me or have me resign. The offer of my resignation, referred to in your letter, was frequently made by me and others for me, and was always refused by you as hurtful to your prospects. It was made from motives of personal convenience; and to help your renomination and silence the calumnies of men who were your enemies. As an instance of your feelings towards whom I would recall to you your course in reference to Mr. Kemble, whom you told me you suspected of being a defaulter, and by your express direction had me send you twice an account from the city to verify your supposed discovery of his delinquencies, and against whom you said I should proceed as soon as you were re-elected.

Now you write to me demanding my resignation, and assign no cause, but leave me open to imputations, to which I will not submit. I will not permit you, at the instance of a class you denounce to me as corrupt factionists and one of whom you instructed me to prosecute, and after you have answered your own convenience and received my help, thus to evict me from a place I never sought and which you solicited me to accept, and which I have held with due respect to my public duty and my own honor.

After this course of duplicity or vacillation, to me it is indifferent, which, serve with you I cannot and will not, and you may hold my office vacant, and fill it with whomsoever will be base and mean enough to run the risk of like treatment, or receive it as the price of some dishonorable bargain.

I am, sir, etc.,
BENJAMIN HARRIS BREWSTER.

We have only to give an explanation why F. Carroll Brewster was appointed to the vacant Attorney Generalship. He was one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia, and the contested election cases in that City came up before him. He earned his present position by throwing out enough Democratic election precincts and divisions to elect the Radical Ticket of last year, except the Mayor. He sold himself, spotted the judicial ermine, and Geary paid the price.

DEAD.—We regret to make the announcement of the death of Charles G. Williams, editor of the Wellsboro (Pa.) Democrat, who died at that place on Saturday night last. Mr. Williams will be remembered by many of our citizens as an old resident here, and editor of the Standard from 1853 to 1857. His remains were brought here on the 10:20 train last Monday evening, and to day were interred in Spring Forest Cemetery beside those of his wife. Mr. Williams possessed many social qualities which endeared him to a large circle of friends who will feel most deeply his loss.—Binghamton Democrat.

We regret very much to learn of Mr. Williams' death. We have known him for several years, and a more open-hearted, genial companion we never met. He battled manfully against Radical rule in Tioga, and had the satisfaction of seeing the opposition majority there reduced by six hundred and fifty votes, and two of the Democratic county officers elected. He was a forcible writer, and conducted the Democrat with ability.

THE retiring Attorney General, Benjamin H. Brewster, introduces his brother, F. C. Brewster, into the dishonorable service of Geary in the following pointed language: "You may hold my "office vacant, and fill it with whomso- "ever will be base and mean enough to "run the risk of like treatment, or re- "ceive it as the price of some dishonor- "able bargain."

TOO BAD.—Geary has dismissed B. H. Brewster from the office of Attorney General and appointed F. Carroll Brewster in his place. The reason for this as we learn, was that Mr. Brewster sent a communication to Geary addressing him thusly—"His Excellency Major General John W. Geary, Governor of Pennsylvania." Geary could not stand this, although Brewster undoubtedly meant well, because he is not "Governor of Pennsylvania" but "Governor of all this Great Commonwealth." There were not titles enough—That's all.

A SPECIAL telegram to the Wilmington, N. C., Journal, dated Goldsboro, Oct. 24, says:—"Our town was thrown into a state of the wildest excitement last night by a riot which commenced early in the evening and lasted until ten o'clock p. m., between the United States troops stationed here and some negroes. Seventy-five guns were fired, and one soldier and one negro were wounded. It is twenty-four hours since the riot, and our authorities have not made or attempted to make the first arrest. There were three fights, the negroes retreating in the last."

ANDREW T. IKELER has sold his tavern and adjoining lot in Benton to Benjamin McHenry and Hiram Hess for $3500.

WE publish this week a list of the jurors drawn for December Court.

CENTRALIA, Pa.
Oct. 18th 1869.

Frank Gallagher at Wynkoop's Colliery near Centralia, was injured by a fall of coal which knocked out both ankles and injured his breast severely. Hopes are entertained of his recovery.

DANIEL DIXON while riding out from his work jumped off a mining wagon in the mines in Goodrich's Colliery, Dark Corner near Centralia. He caught hold of the laggings on the gangway side, but they gave way and a large lump of coal fell out and broke his leg below the knee. Fortunately the wagon passed.

WHILE Henry Lightfoot an Englishman was in the act of tamping a hole to blast coal, in the mines of Mr. Anderson, the shot went off, knocked out his eyes, broke his jaw and one arm, and terribly mangling him. He struggled for a few days and on Saturday 16th inst., death put an end to his sufferings. He leaves a wife and five children, lately arrived from England in poor circumstances. They depended on his labor entirely for support. This case demands the charity and sympathy of the community.

TONY LENIHAN, an old man, while in the employ of R. Gorrell was caught between mining cars and badly hurt, principally about the body. He is in a poor condition at this writing.

ON Saturday 9th inst., the son of James Flynn in the employ of Replgier & Co., between this Borough and Ashland was caught in the shafts of the breaker machinery. He got seven severe twists all the way around. Strange to say he is recovering although he had to pass through a very narrow place. This was a miraculous escape.

All the above accidents except one happened last week.

There are a few others of similar character. But have forgotten the names and facts.

THE Borough officers of Centralia for the coming year are mixed and about equally divided between both parties. This of course was not a Republican majority but a magnanimous concession on the part of the Democrats.

All have rights and interests in local affairs, and if the Republicans would recognize such facts in their strong holds, a good deal of political bigotry would be suppressed. Your friend.

OLD COLLEGE EASTON, Pa.

MR. EDITOR,

DEAR SIR:—A match game of Base Ball was played on Saturday the 15th, between the first nine of the "Lehigh University," Bethlehem, and the first nine of "Lafayette College" Easton, on the grounds of the latter. The game was very exciting one; the game was tied on the ninth inning, both sides having made forty-five runs. The game would most probably have ended in favor of the Lafayette Club, had it not been for the breaking of a bat on the eighth inning putting the third man out, darkness prevented the playing of anther inning. Over five hundred persons witnessed the game.

MR. EDITOR:—At a late meeting of our Society, it was considered advisable (and unanimously agreed upon) to have a copy of our Resolutions published in the columns of your paper that thereby they might be circulated throughout the community.

Resolutions of the C. G. M.:

Resolved, That inasmuch as the welfare and morality of our community, depends on our efforts and success in ferreting out and bringing to light the private affairs of our inhabitants either collectively or individually,

Resolved, That the younger portion of our community be placed under the strictest surveilance. That their outgoings and their in-comings be noted in our book of records to be brought before the society at any future period, with any additions and exaggerations that they may see proper to make, in order to enhance their interest and increase their value to the C. G. M.

Resolved, That any remark made in a jesting mood, shall be treasured up and laid away until occasion shall call for its re-production, when it shall be coined over and presented as the earnest opinion of the unthinking speaker who shall thus realize the folly of saying anything he does not really mean, in the presence of any member of the C. G. M.

Resolved, That a merry laugh is the sure forerunner of guilty actions and that it be considered a heinous offence which shall be enlarged and commented upon to suit the convenience and puritanical tastes of the C. G. M.

Resolved, That if a young lady be seen speaking to a gentleman in a pleasant or confidential manner, the character of said young lady will sink to the lowest degree of degradation, and her name connected with infamy be bandied from lip to lip by the untiring zeal of the C. G. M.

Resolved, That inasmuch as flowers are the type of Purity and Innocence bearing with them the fragrance of Truth and Friendship,

Resolved, That the presenting of a cluster or bouquet (however innocent and pure may be the motives which have actuated the deed,) they shall be miss construed and eventually (as proof of feelings other than friendship) blight the fair name and ruin the character of the timid shrinking innocent offender doomed to eternal disgrace by the vigilance of the C. G. M.

Resolved, That no kindness, however pure the motive, however innocent the intention, shall be received as such but the character and happiness of all shall immeasurably suffer from the blighting raining influence of the C. G. M.

Resolved, That we will pursue our work regardless of the breaking hearts, the pleading voices of those who sink into oblivion innocent as the very lambs or the anathemas of those who first yielded to temptation when writhing 'neath the fiery ordeal of Slander regardless of all these we will still keep on our whole armour of deceitfulness and many more shall be the innocent hearts broken by the C. G. M.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.

HARPER'S Magazine, apart from the illustrations contains from fifty to one hundred per cent. more matter than any similar periodical issued in the English language.

Critical Notices of the Press.

The most popular Monthly in the world.—New York Observer.

We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellences of Harper's Magazine—a journal with a monthly circulation of about 120,000 copies—in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as an evidence of the culture of the American people; and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, appropriately illustrated with good woodcuts; and it combines in itself the race monthly and the more pretentious quarterly, clothed with the best features of both.—Daily Journal. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature.—TRUBNER'S Guide to American Literature, London.

It is one of the wonders of Journalism—the editorial management of Harper's. * * * All the periodicals which the Harpers publish are almost ideally well edited.—The Nation, N. Y.

We can unreservedly endorse its success only by the simple fact that it meets precisely the popular taste, furnishing a variety of pleasing and instructive reading for all.—Zion's Herald, Boston.

HARPER'S BAZAR.

A Supplement containing numerous full-sized patterns of useful articles accompanies the paper every fortnight, and occasionally an elegant Colored Fashion Plate.

Harper's Bazar contains 16 folio pages of the size of Harper's Weekly, printed on superfine calendered paper, and is published weekly.

Critical Notices of the Press.

Harper's Bazar contains, besides pictures, patterns, etc., a variety of matter of special use and interest to the family; articles on health, dress, and housekeeping in all its branches; its editorial matter is special y adapted to the circle it is intended to interest and instruct; and it has, besides, good stories and literary matter of merit. It is not surprising that the journal, with such features, has achieved in a short time an immense success; for something of its kind was desired in thousands of families, and its publishers have filled the demand. The young lady who buys a single number of Harper's Bazar is made a subscriber for life.—New York Evening Post.

The Bazar is excellent. Like all the periodicals which the Harper's publish, it is almost ideally well edited, and the class of readers for whom it is designed—the wives and daughters in average families—can not but profit by its good sense and good taste, which, we have no doubt, are to day making very many homes happier than they would have been before the Bazar began talking less on its pictures and household and social management from this good-natured mentor.—The Nation.

It has the merit of being sensible, of conveying instruction, of giving excellent patterns in every department, and of being well stocked with good reading matter.—Watchman and Reflector.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CATAWISSA MASONIC ASSOCIATION, AT CATAWISSA.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Take notice, that I, H. Scostholz, George S. Gilbert, M. C. B. Kline, Walter Scott, W. H. Keefer, D. F. Smith, W. H. Abbott, C. Ellis, Isaac S. Monroe, John K. Robbins, John Thomas, and C. B. Brockway, being citizens of the State of Pennsylvania, being desirous of acquiring and enjoying the rights and privileges of a body corporate, have exhibited and presented to the Court of Common Pleas of Columbia county, an instrument in writing, purporting to be the petition of the said Masonic Mosaic Association, township of Catawissa, in the county of Columbia, specifying the objects, articles, conditions, name, style or title, under which they have associated and mean to associate. And the said Court having perused and examined the said instrument, and found the objects and conditions therein set forth and contained, to be lawful and not injurious to the community, have directed said writing to be filed in the Prothonotary's office of said County and notice to be given according to law, that application has been made to said Court to grant said charter, and that if no sufficient reason be shown to the contrary, by the first day of the next term of said Court, to wit, on the First Monday of December next they will decree and declare the persons so associated and their successors to be a corporation or body politic, according to the said articles and conditions, and to have continuance by the name, style or title, in said instrument mentioned.
JESSE COLEMAN,
Bloomsburg, Oct. 29,

The Columbian.

Bloomsburg, Pa., Friday Oct. 29, 1869.

PERSONS desiring marriage or death notices inserted in our columns, should send them directly to us.

GEN. W. H. ENT has purchased the property of John B. Pursel on Main St. adjoining the Court House for the sum of $8000.

THE contract for building the proposed new School House in East Bloomsburg has been awarded to John S. Sterner for a sum not far from $9,000.

SOME PORK.—Jeremiah Cooper of this place has a pig which weighs six hundred and seventy pounds. Is there any one who has more pork in one lump than this?

C. B. BROCKWAY, on next Saturday evening will deliver an address at the Odd Fellows' Hall, in this place. Members of neighboring lodges are invited to be present.

THE "Walnut Hotel" at Light Street, now occupied by Samuel Kline, is offered for sale. It is well located, and with proper care could be made to pay well. For particulars see advertisement.

COLD WEATHER.—In many parts of the country the cold has been very severe. In St. Louis, on Saturday, snow fell to the depth of two inches. Everything seems to betoken an early winter.

WE learn that our friend Sheriff Millard shot an eagle whilst at Long Pond. We have not seen the bird and have no idea of its size. We hope to secure a couple of quills as they make admirable pens,

AT the recent election, Messrs. Thomas and Brower, candidates for Justice of the Peace ran a tie vote. A new election will be held on Tuesday Nov. 9th. The same candidates we are informed will be in the field.

A HINT:—If those who grow poor crops would blame the weather and season less, would drain more, plow deeper, and enrich the soil by grasses and manures—they would find that the weather and the seasons are not so much to be blamed for failures after all.

THE party who started from here last week on a hunting expedition to Long Pond returned on Saturday last with a deer, and a quantity of pigeons, pheasants, and wild ducks. A party from Wilkes-Barre who were there at the same time secured a good sized bear.

D. A. Beckley has bought out the Book Store, on the corner of Main and Market Streets, lately occupied by Matthew Wynkoop and has moved the stock into his own store in the PostOffice building. He will be prepared henceforth to supply all demands for Books and Stationery.

WE have received "A School History of Pennsylvania from the earliest settlements to the present time," by J. R. Sypher. This book which has been adopted by the Board of Control for the use of the Schools of Philadelphia, is written in a concise yet comprehensive manner and seems to be admirable in every respect. It will undoubtedly meet with very general adoption. Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co. Philadelphia at $1 50.

VAN CAMP Lodge, I. O. of O. F. at this place has instituted a series of lectures this winter, to be delivered by her own members and those from other lodges. The idea is a good one, and will result in benefit to the order, making the Lodge Room more attractive, and aiding to pass away the winter evenings. Sister lodges would do well to imitate, and by exchanging speakers a full supply might be obtained.

TEARING down bills, or covering them up with other bills, or in any way defacing them, is a misdemeanor punishable by fine. Numerous complaints are made that bills carefully put in proper places are soon torn down by thoughtless boys. When a man spends his money in expensive posters to advertise his business, he should be protected in his right to place them before the public, so long as he violates no individual right.

A NEW COUNTERFEIT.—A new grist of $10 counterfeit greenbacks have been set afloat throughout the State. This last issue is so well executed, and so close an imitation of the genuine, that professional experts can hardly detect the difference. The letter P, to "Pay to the bearer," has an up stroke; in the genuine it has none. The five lines which form the shading around the Eagle's head in the vignette, are coarse and scratchy compared with the genuine.

TO REMOVE SUBSTANCES FROM THE EYE.—To remove foreign bodies from the eyelid, take hold of the upper eyelid, near its angles, with the index finger and thumb of each hand. Draw it gently forward, and as low down as possible over the lower eyelid, and retain it in this position for ab ut a minute, taking care to prevent the tears flowing out. When at the end of this time you allow the eyelid to resume its place, a flood of tears washes out the foreign body which will be found adhering to, or near the lower lid.

SPRUCE UP.—If you get a moment to spare, spruce up; put that gate on its hingest put a little paint on the picket fence you built last year; trim up about the door-yard; make it cosy and inviting. Don't say you can't find time to attend to these things. The fact is, you have no right to be slovenly. Your wife and children will be happier, your farm will sell for more money in the market, and will be worth more to you at home, if you devote an odd hour now and then to sprucing up.

DOES IT PAY TO ADVERTISE.—The Boston Journal says that a leading book firm in that city answers this question as follows: They published an edition of a book of 500 copies, and did not advertise it. In about a year nearly the whole edition remained on their hands, as the author, who was largely interested, did not think it would pay to advertise. Finding his book did not sell, he followed the advice of his publishers and advertised freely. His book has now gone through seven editions of 500 copies each, and the eighth is ordered. The author now believes in advertising.

SUPERVISORS.—We beg leave to call the attention of Supervisors to the fact that it is their duty to give bond to the township, to be approved by the Auditors or Borough Councils, within thirty days after their election. If they do not do so they are not Supervisors. They can be indicted for neglect of duty; and have no power to forcibly collect road taxes, or get any pay. By the change in the time of election, it becomes their duty to give this bond within thirty days after the second Tuesday in October. If they neglect to give bond, the Court will fill the office by appointment, and until that is done their predecessors continue in office.

WE give this week a full and corrected table of the votes in the different counties at the late election.

FOUND.—A couple of pieces of cloth, will be returned to the owner, by proving property and payment of advertisement. Inquire at this office.

ONE of the finest, most romantic sheets of water in the State is what is known as "Long Pond," on the North Mountain. Cannot some one give it a prettier and more appropriate name? The present one suggests anything but a beautiful inland lake.

NEW SALOON.—Bernhard Stohner has opened a fine large saloon in the basement of the new Columbia Hotel, where oysters and other delicacies can be obtained at any time. His many friends and the public generally should bear this in mind and give him a call.

SEIZURE.—On Monday last the Revenue officers made a seizure of the Distillery, Still and apparatus of Rohr & McHenry in Benton township for alleged neglect of the Revenue laws. Mr. McHenry is at present under bonds to appear before the U. S. Commissioner at this place on the 4th of November next.

GOVERNMENT SALE.—On Monday last the U. S. Marshal for this Revenue District sold 21 barrels of whiskey, formerly the property of E. J. Beyer, distiller, and seized last Spring for violation of the Revenue laws. The greater portion of it was purchased by Loeb & Dreifuss of Danville. Prices were as follows: Rectified $1.30, unrectified 78 to 91 cents, liable to Government tax.

THERE is something rotten about the mail management between this point and Chestnut Grove, Lairdsville, and Unityville. Our papers are placed in the mail bags for those points on Thursday evenings, and they go by one man as far as Chestnut Grove and Lairdsville the same night, yet for some unexplained reason they do not reach our subscribers until the following Tuesday. We propose instituting a close inquiry into the cause of this delay, and will fully expose the guilty parties if detected.

WITH this issue we drop the names of those who subscribed for the Campaign Columbian. If they desire the continuance of the paper their names should be sent in at once. It gives us pleasure to state that our circulation is still steadily increasing, and now reaches 2500 copies. There are still many persons in this and adjoining counties whose names should be on our lists, not only for their own sakes but for those of their wives and children. The expense is but four cents a week, for which they get an average of eighteen columns of well selected reading matter. The long winter evenings are at hand, and a newspaper will furnish reading material for many an otherwise weary evening.

Now that the election is over special attention will be paid to the literary and news departments. Subscribe at once, and give us a trial.

THE FAIR.—Notwithstanding the inclement weather, an unusually large number of persons attended the fair. Financially, also, it was a success, the receipts being about $2400, or $300,00 in excess of any former year. There were many new and rare articles on exhibition, and in some of the classes there was an unusually fine display. Upon the whole, however, we do not think the display much better than in former years. This is no fault of the officers of the Society, as sufficient premiums were offered, but is to be attributed to the bad weather, and the insufficient character of the buildings. They should be enclosed two story structures.

We are fully satisfied that if our people would go to work in earnest they could make four times the display, and exhibit a much better quality of goods and productions. Many after seeing the exhibition, have remarked that they had a superior article of this or that kind of goods, manufactures, or productions. Why was it not brought? Suppose no premium was drawn, you have at least made a contribution towards the success of the Fair, and incited others to competition.

There were less than the usual number of fat women, dwarfs, and side shows of various kinds, devised to pick the dimes from the pockets of the curious.

We would respectfully suggest that it would be advisable to hold the Fair two weeks earlier hereafter. The chance for pleasant weather would be much better, and we would get the start of other counties.

NO. C.

THE TRIAL OF THE WINDS.

The following poem was suggested by hearing an elderly lady, during very stormy weather in March, say she had dreamed, and her dream was, The Trial of the Winds.

'Twas on a lovely morn in May,
The sun shone cheerily and gay;
The feather'd songsters swell'd their throats
Re-echoing each other's notes;
The lambkins gambol'd on the glade,
And merry children shouting play'd—
Fair Nature seemed with common voice
To bid her offspring all rejoice.
Gone was old Winter's biting frost,
And all his fairy ice-work lost;
Gone were his winds, his howling blast,
And calm, so grateful, came at last.
Then stealing from the busy throng,
I sauntered carelessly along,
And found me in a shady grove
Where twining vines were interwove,
A little brook ran purling by,
And simple wild flowers flourished nigh;
The grass beneath was velvet soft,
The winds were still—no breeze aloft
Stirred the thick forest standing near,
Displaying green the starling year;
sky,
No clouds were flitting o'er the deep blue
No storm seemed looming o'er the mountain high.

I sat upon a mossy stone,
And thought of how the winds had blown,
And musing o'er the wondrous change,
I heard a voice it seem'd too—strange.
It spoke but low, yet seem'd to say
The Winds their trial have to-day!
Whence came it? this an elfin bow'r
And I then under elfin pow'r;
Or had the brook low rippling by,
But lull'd me with its minstrelsy?
The scene was chang'd, I seem'd afar
Transported, in a rapid car,
Where mountains rear'd their lofty heads,
And rocks were tumbling from their beds,
Where quak'd the ground on which I stood,
And furious rag'd an angry flood.
Beneath a huge o'erhanging rock
Was something like an entrance broke.
Impell'd by some resistless force,
I follow'd on the darksome course;
Long seem'd the way and terrible—
At length a glimmering on me fell.
Then open'd wide a spacious room,
Not lighter than the twilight gloom.
Here seated on his rocky throne
Was Æolus, whom winds must own
Their rightful sovereign, who controls
Their power, them in subjection holds.
Here 'neath the mighty mountain's pile,
Where mountains girdar round the while,
Where nature made her strongest fort,
Secure he holds his royal court.
He spake, the ready rocks resound—
The solemn silence reigns around;
The winds are still, their murmurs hushed in awe,
Their king commands, his will's their only law.
Again he spoke "Ye winds, 'tis said
Each his commission did exceed;
The Tempest, Whirlwind, Hurricane
Left dire destruction in their train.
Zephyr, thy testimony show"—
The Zephyr then with whisper low
Told how he plumed his tender wing
And sallied forth a joyous thing,
But e'er gone far, how sad he turned
To see the misery he learn'd
His brother Hurricane had wrought
'Mongst those whose peace he would have sought,
How fields were strip'd of bending grain,
And orchards scatter'd o'er the plain,
How roofs were from the houses torn
And crushing timbers distant borne,
How on it rush'd so fierce and foul
E'en though was mingled with its howl
The mother's shriek, the maiden's cry,
And sterner man's despairing sigh—
How'er the poor man's humble cot,
The whirlwind wrested from the spot,
Regarding not that his would be
An aged housekeeping beggary.
Thus sicken'd at the ways of men
He turned and hasten'd back again.

A murmur then—"The Breeze will show
What of the matter he may know."
He quickly thus—"I'm but a Breeze
That loves to rustle 'mongst the trees.
Thou gav'st me leave, I went abroad,
And first I hied me to a wood,
Where sorry sights soon met my view
And 'twas the whirlwind well I knew
That had such wretched mischief made
The giant oak was prostrate laid,
The hickory bent, could bend no more,
And from its trunk its limbs were tore;
The pine had moaned, was heeded not,
But reckless carried from the spot,
There all around my favorites lay;
With fond regrets I fled away,
And going 'mongst the haunts of men
I saw but need not tell again,
What you dread sire but now have heard;
So pass I on with hasty word.
I bore me to the far off main
To where a ship becalm'd, in vain
Had spread its sails, they listless hung,
Or to the yards as listless clung.
I saw and gladly lent my aid,
And while the ship quick headway made,
I heard them tell a fearful tale
That made the sternest faces pale,
How only three short nights before,
They trembled at the Tempest's roar;
How mountains high the billows rose,
And yawning gulphs beneath disclose;
How creak'd the ship before the blast;
With canvass torn and splintered mast;
Now toiling up the watery steep,
Now plunged like lightning down the deep;
A noble ship that by their side
The bolsterous waves full long did ride,
Had struck upon an unseen rock,
Unable she to bear the shock,
Leaking and reeling to and fro.
Certain yet slowly down they go,
The invidious Tempest hurling on the waves
The gallant crew haste to their watery graves.

The King—"If ye have ought to say
In your defence, clear is the way,"
Then forth to speak the tempest stood,
Rough was his speech, his bearing rude,
Short nor defence, for brethren we,
And I am spokesman for the three,
Naught that's been said do we deny,
We've tossed the waves o'er to the sky,
And in the surges of the deep
We've thousands, thousands rocked to sleep;
Before us both the forest writh'd,
We're of its noblest always with'd;
Castle and cot alike we've swept,
And o'er our wrecks man oft hath wept,
That we our warrant did exceed,
We, loyal, do deny indeed;
For did'st thou not, imperial sire,
Of us, thy subjects, but require
To show to man thy mighty power?
Such love we've done until this hour,
The winds were clear'd, the trial o'er
I turned me round to seek the door,
I'd lost the way—I loudly scream'd
I op'd my eyes—lo! I had dream'd.

Special Notices.

LET US PROTECT OURSELVES.—The physical structure of the strongest human being is vulnerable every where. Our bodies are exposed by nature with a certain negative power, which protects them, to some extent, from unwholesome influences; but this protection is imperfect and cannot be safely relied on in unhealthy regions, or under circumstances of more than ordinary danger. Therefore, it is wisdom; it is prudence; it is common sense to provide against such contingencies, by taking an antidote in advance; in other words, by fortifying the system with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS—the most complete protective against all the epidemic and endemic maladies that has ever been administered in any country. As a remedy for Dyspepsia, there is no medicine that will compare with it. Whoever suffers the pangs of indigestion, anywhere on the face of the earth where HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS can be procured, does so voluntarily; for, as surely as truth exists, this invaluable tonic and alterative would restore his disordered stomach to a healthy condition. To the nervous it is also especially recommended, and in cases of confirmed constipation it also affords speedy and permanent relief.

In all cases of fever and ague the BITTERS is more potent than any amount of quinine, while the most dangerous cases of bilious fever yield to its wonderful properties. Those who have tried the medicine will never use another, for any of the ailments which the HOSTETTER BITTERS professes to subdue. To those who have not made the experiment we cordially recommend an early application to the BITTERS whenever they are stricken by disease of the digestive organs.

THE ONLY RELIABLE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA IN THE KNOWN WORLD.

Dr. Wishart's Great American Dyspepsia Pills and Pine Tree Tar Cordial are a positive and infallible cure for dyspepsia in its most aggravated form, and no matter of how long standing.

They penetrate the secret abode of this terrible disease, and exterminate it, root and branch, forever.

They alleviate more agony and silent suffering than tongue can tell.

They are noted for curing the most desperate and hopeless cases, when every known means fail to afford relief.

No form of dyspepsia or indigestion can resist their penetrating power.

DR. WISHART'S PINE TREE TAR CORDIAL

It is the vital principle of the Pine Tree, obtained by a peculiar process in the distillation of the tar, by which its highest medical properties are retained. It invigorates the digestive organs and restores dyspeptics. It strengthens the debilitated system. It purifies and enriches the blood, and expels from the system the corruption which seems a breeze on the lungs. It dissolves the mucus or phlegm which settles on the delicate tissues of the lungs. Its healing principle acts upon the irritated surface of the lungs and throat, penetrating to each diseased part, relieving pain and subduing inflammation. It is the result of years of study and experiment, and it is offered to the afflicted with positive assurance of its power to cure the following diseases, if the patient has not too long delayed a resort to its use: Diseases of the Consumption of the Lungs, Cough, Sore Throat, and Breast, Bronchitis, Liver Complaint, Blind and Bleeding Piles, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Diptheria, &c.

A medical expert, holding honorable collegiate diplomas, devotes his entire time to the examination of patients at the Office. He associates with him are three consulting physicians of acknowledged eminence, whose services are given to the public FREE OF CHARGE.

This opportunity is offered by no other Institution in the country

Letters from any part of the country, asking advice, will be promptly and gratuitously responded to. Where convenient, invalidates should take the shape of.

DOTY'S WASHING-MACHINE,

LATELY MUCH IMPROVED—AND THE NEW

UNIVERSAL CLOTHES WRINGER

Improved with Rowell's Patent Double Cog-Wheels, and the Patent Stop, are now unquestionably far superior to any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented, and will save their cost twice over, by saving labor and clothes.

Those who have used them give testimony as follows:

"We like our machine much; could not be persuaded to do without it, and with the aid of Doty we feel that we are masters of the position."—N. Y. Tribune.

"It is worth one dollar a week in any family."—N. Y. Tribune.

"In the laundry of my house there is a perpetual thanksgiving on Mondays for the invention."—Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler.

"Every week has given it a stronger hold upon the affections of the inmates of the laundry."—N. Y. Observer.

"I heartily commend it to economists of time, money, and contentment."—Rev. Dr. Bellows.

"Friend Doty—Your last improvement of your Washing Machine is a complete success. I assure you 'our machine,' after a years' use, is thought more of to-day than ever, and would not be parted with under any circumstances."—Solon Robinson.

"Your Washing Machine has been in daily use in our laundry, and the housekeeper expresses herself as highly pleased with it. It certainly accomplishes a great deal of work, with less labor, and does not wear the clothes near so much as the old fashioned wash-board. By using it, one laundress is all perfect with."—Rev. M. F. Bonnell, Superintendent of Infant Department of St. Catharine's Nursery, N. Y. City.

"After a constant use of the Universal Clothes Wringer for more than four years in our family, I am authorized by the Company to give it the most unqualified praise, and to pronounce it an indispensable part of the machinery of housekeeping. Our servants have always been willing to use it, and always have liked it."—Henry Ward Beecher.

PRICES.—A FAIR OFFER.

Send the retail price, Washer $11, Extra Wringer $7 50, and we will forward either by U. S. sonveyance, free of freight, to places where no one is selling, and assure are we they will be liked, that we agree to refund the money if any one wishes to return them after one week's trial, after a month's trial, according to directions.

No husband, father or brother should permit the drudgery of washing with the hands, fingers sore, back aching, when he can do the better, more expeditiously, with less labor, and no injury to the garments, by a Doty Clothes Washer, and a Universal Wringer.

Canvassers with every right of sale made money fast selling them.

Sold by dealers generally, to whom liberal discounts are made.

FORTY THOUSAND CASES OF

goods were shipped from our house in One Year, to families, stores, and merchants, in every part of the country, from Maine to California, amounting in value to over

ONE MILLION DOLLARS.

Our facilities for transacting this immense business are better than ever before. We have agents in all the principal cities to purchase goods from the Manufacturers, Importers, and others for CASH, and can sell at a small profit, in the exact original cost of production.

Our stock consists, in part, of the following goods:—

Shawls, Blankets, Quilts, Cottons, Ginghams, Dress Goods, Table Linens, Towels, Hosiery, Gloves Skirts, Corsets, &c., &c.

Silver-Plated Ware, Spoons plated on Nickel Silver, Dessert Forks, Heavily-plated Castors, Britannia Ware, Glass Ware, Table and Pocket Cutlery, in great variety.

Elegant French and German Fancy Goods, Beautiful Photograph Albums, the newest and choicest styles in Morocco and Velvet Bindings, Morocco Traveling Bags, Handkerchief and Glove Boxes, &c.

Gold and Plated Jewelry, of the newest styles.

We have also made arrangements with some of the leading Publishing Houses, that will enable us to sell the standard and best works of popular authors at about one half the regular price—such as BYRON, MOORE, BURNS, MILTON, and TENNYSON'S WORKS, in full cloth and Cloth Binding, and hundreds of others. These and everything else for

ONE DOLLAR FOR EACH ARTICLE.

We do not offer a single article of merchandise that can be sold by regular dealers at our price. We do not ask you to buy goods from us unless we can sell them cheaper than you can obtain them in any other way—while the greater part of our goods are sold at about

ONE-HALF THE REGULAR RATES.

We want good reliable agents in every part of the Country. By employing your spare time to form clubs and sending us orders, you can obtain the most liberal commissions, either in Cash or Merchandise, and all goods sent by us will be as represented, and we guarantee satisfaction to every one dealing with our house.

Agents should collect ten cents from each customer intended to us in advance, for Descriptive Checks of the good we sell.

The holders of the Checks have the privilege of either purchasing the article therein described, or of exchanging for any article contained in our Catalogue, numbering over 250 different articles—and one of which can be purchased in the want of any one customer.

The advantages of first sending for Checks are these: We are continually buying small lots of very valuable goods, which are not on our catalogues, and for which we cannot call till all are sold; besides, in every large club we will put checks for Watches, Quilts, Blankets, Dress Patterns, or some other articles of value, giving some member of the club an opportunity of purchasing an article for about one quarter of its value.

FARMER'S COLUMN.

Manures--How and When to Use Them.

The best method of using stable or barn-yard manure for corn or potatoes, is to haul it fresh from the cellar in the condition in which it rests in the vaults, spread it upon the plowed field, and harrow it in with a Geddes harrow. This is what is called "long manure," and is a form which, according to the opinions of many farmers, is unsuited to immediate use; also, it is objected, that in spreading fresh manure upon plowed fields and covering it only superficially with earth, much of it is lost by evaporation; or, more correctly speaking, certain volatile, gaseous constituents rise on the breeze and are wafted away. In our view, both of these notions are incorrect. The excrement of animals must undergo a kind of fermentation, or putrefactive change, before it is assimilated by plants, and it is better that this be carried forward in the field, as there it is in contact with the soil, which is greedy to absorb all the products of the chemical change. Creative power has bestowed upon dry earth prodigious absorptive capabilities. If a lump of fresh manure as large as a peck measure is placed upon a plowed field uncovered, and allowed to ferment or decay in the open air, the absorptive powers of the earth are such, that it will actually attract towards it ammoniacal and other gases, and thus rob the atmosphere of its natural volatile principles. A film of earth no thicker than the rind of an orange, placed over a lump of manure, will effectually prevent loss of manurial products, under all possible circumstances. It will be agreed then, that a harrow is equally as effective as a plow in protecting manure in an open field. It is better to have the manure near the surface, as the rains can reach it, and dissolve the soluable salts, and by percolation carry them down to the hungry roots of plants. Long manure is not lost when deeply turned under by the plow, but the farmer does not secure the whole value of his dressing under this mode of treatment in any case, and on some soils the loss is almost serious one. In the process of soap-making, it becomes necessary to set up a leach. Now, the farmer will not attempt to exhaust the tub of ashes of its potash by forcing water into the bottom and dipping the liquid off from the top. The natural percolating or exhausting process is downwards, in accordance with the laws of gravity. The soluble alkalies and salts are driven downwards, and in the case of the leach we must have a vessel ready to receive them at the bottom, and in the case of the same substances leached from manure, we must have the manure so placed that plant roots will be at hand to absorb them before they pass beyond their reach.

Manure is never so valuable as when it is fresh. It then holds in association not only all the fixed soluble substances, natural to the solid excrement, but much that is of great value, found only in the liquid. It is in a condition to quickly undergo chemical change, and the gaseous, ammoniacal products secured are double those resulting from that which has been weathered in a heap out of doors for several months.—Boston Journal of Chemistry.

MAKING PIGS PROFITABLE.—A correspondent of the Western Rural describes his method of making pigs profitable as follows:

I saw in your paper of a late date an inquiry as to the way by which to make pigs profitable. I would say in the first place, keep no more than are sufficient to eat what feed you have. If one pig will eat it, give it to him; it is better than to feed it to two. In the next place have a good, warm dry place for them to sleep in, with plenty of clean straw, changed twice a week. I raised nine pigs from a Suffolk sow and Chester boar, last year, fed on milk and corn mostly in the ear, and all the milk they would drink. They averaged 275 pounds dressed, when eight months old. Keeping hogs poor one year and fat the next, has exploded with me years ago. I recollect having two pigs of a neighboring farmer in 1845. I fed mine well during winter, on corn and slops of house. He fed his so as to just keep the them alive. After about four months I saw his pigs and said to him: "Our pigs do not look as though they were of the same litter." He said they did not, but that his would make as much pork in the fall as mine. I told him I would remember it, for if I was a fool it was time I knew it. I slaughtered mine when they were fourteen months old. One weighed 367, the other 441 pounds. He kept his one month longer, and one weighed 282, and the other 238 pounds. If I had not much milk, I should prefer corn, rye and oats, ground in equal parts, scalded and let stand until it ferments.

The Treatment of Sick Animals.

The crying evil of the agriculture of this country is, that we have no good system of veterinary instruction. Except in the large cities, and indeed, in most of those, it is impossible to find a well-educated veterinary surgeon.—Throughout the whole length and breadth of the land, our poor dumb brutes, condemned to suffer from diseases generally brought about by our own carelessness or neglect, are obliged to bear the still greater suffering of the barbarous treatment of common farriers and quacks, who know almost nothing of the organization of their bodies. As a natural consequence, violent purgings, frightful blood-lettings, blisters and firings, are applied without thought and without reason, entailing untold agony to the animal, and generally much loss to its owner. Of course, when an animal is sick, any farmer who is ignorant of what should be done ought to secure the best advice within his reach. But he should always retain so much control over the treatment as to avoid resort to barbarous remedies, unless the unskilled practitioner can convince him that there is good reason for it; for, as a general rule, an animal left to the unguided curative processes of nature would come better out of its troubles than if subjected to the operation of brutal means for the restoration of its health. With animals, as with men, there is far too much medicine-giving, bli-tering and bleeding; and probably more are killed or permanently injured by these practices than are cured by them. Of course, in some desperate cases, they are necessary, but they should always be resorted to with caution, and with much hesitation. In all minor diseases, bad air, bad food, filth, and neglect, the wisest treatment is the removal of the cause, and the restoration of those simple, natural conditions upon which the return, no less than the maintenance, of health is based. The purging ball may often be with advantage supplanted by a loosening diet, bleeding, almost invariably by such a diet and by pure air. Warm clothing and thorough grooming will usually do the work of the blister, and do it much better. In all cases of strains, bruises, and wounds, water is an almost sovereign remedy; and in nine-tenths of the cases in which it is thought necessary to send for the local cow doctor or horse doctor, the simple treatment above indicated will be found not only cheaper, but far better in its application and in its effects.—American Agriculturist.

THE YOUNG FOLKS.

Karl Katz.

[CONCLUDED.]

His first step was to look for the doorway through which he had followed his goat; but to his astonishment, not the least trace of an opening of any sort was to be seen. There stood the wall, without chink or crack big enough for a rat to pass through. Again he paused and scratched his head. His hat was full of holes: "Why, it was new last Shrove tide!" said he. By chance his eye fell next on his shoes, which were almost new when he last left home; but now they looked so old, that they were likely to fall to pieces before he could get home. All his clothes seemed in the same sad plight. The more he looked, the more he pondered, the more he was at a loss to know what could have happened to him.

At length he turned round, and left the old walls to look for his flock. Slow and out of heart he wound his way among the mountain steeps, through paths where his flocks were wont to wander: still not a goat was to be seen. Again he whistled and called his dog, but no dog came. Below him in the plain lay the village where his home was; so at length he took the downward path, and set out with a heavy heart and a faltering step in search of his flock.

"Surely," said he, "I shall soon meet some neighbor, who can tell me where my goats are?" But the people who met him, as he drew near to the village were all unknown to him. They were not even dressed as his neighbours were and they seemed as if they hardly spoke the same tongue. When he eagerly asked each as he came up, after his goats, they only stared at him and stroked their chins. At last he did the same too; and what was his wonder to find that his beard was grown at least a foot long! "The world," said he to himself, "is surely turned upside down, or if not, I must be bewitched:" and yet he knew the mountain, as he turned round again, and looked back on its woody heights; and he knew the houses and cottages also, with their little gardens, as he entered the village. All were in the places he had always known them in; and he heard some children too (as a traveler that passed by was asking his way,) call the village by the very same name he had always known it to bear.

Again he shook his head, and went straight through the village to his own cottage. Alas! it looked sadly out of repair; the windows were broken, the door off its hinges, and in the court-yard lay an unknown child, in a ragged dress playing with a rough, toothless old dog whom he thought he ought to know, but who snarled and barked in his face when he called to him. He went in at the open doorway; but he found all so dreary and empty, that he staggered out again like a drunken man, and called his wife and children loudly by their names: but no one heard, at least no one answered him.

A crowd of women and children soon flocked around the strange-looking man with the long grey beard; and all broke upon him at once with the questions, "Who are you?" "Who is it that you want?" It seemed to him so odd to ask other people, at his own door, after his wife and children, that, in order to get rid of the crowd, he named the first man that came into his head. "Hans the blacksmith?" said he. Most held their tongues and stared; but at last an old woman said, "He went these seven years ago to a place that you will not reach to day." "Fritz the tailor, then?" "Heaven rest his soul!" said an old beldam, upon crutches; "he has lain these ten years in a house that he'll never leave."

Karl Katz looked at the old woman again, and shuddered, as he knew her to be one of his old gossips; but saw she had a strangely altered face. All wish to ask further questions was gone; but at last a young woman made her way through the gaping throng, with a baby in her arms, and a little girl of about three years old clinging to her other hand. All three looked the very image of his wife. "What is thy name?" asked he, wildly. "Liese!" said she. "And your father's?" "Karl Katz! Heaven bless him!" said she; "but, poor man! he is lost and gone. It is now full twenty years since we sought for him day and night on the mountain. His dog and his flock came back, but he never was heard of any more. I was then seven years old."

Poor Karl could hold no longer; "I am Karl Katz, and no other!" said he, as he took the child from his daughter's arms and kissed it over and over again.

All stood gaping, and hardly knowing what to say or think, when old Stropken the Schoolmaster hobbled by, and took a long and close look at him. "Karl Katz! Karl Katz!" said he slowly: "why it is Karl Katz, sure enough! There is my own mark upon him; there is the scar over his righteye, that I gave him myself one day with my oak stick." Then several others also cried out, "Yes it is! it is Karl Katz! Welcome neighbor, welcome home?" "But where," said or thought all, "can an honest steady fellow like you have been these twenty years?"

And now the whole village had flocked around; the children laughed, the dogs barked, and all were glad to see neighbor Karl alive and well. As to where he had been for the twenty years that was a part of the story at which Karl shrugged up his shoulders; for he never could very well explain it, and seemed to think the less that was said about it the better. But it was plain enough that what dwelt most on his memory was the noble wine that tickled his mouth while the knights played their game of nine-pins.

DRUGS & MEDICINES.

PARKER'S

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color

A dressing which is more agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Cathartic Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine has ever been so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever so much needed before it was known. Adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as the most efficient purgative yet found. The obvious reason is, that it is more reliable and far more effectual than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compounding. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cases are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by any body. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can result from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstruction as which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

BAUGH'S

RAW BONE

SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME.

TRADE MARK

STANDARD WARRANTED.

We offer to Farmers, the present fall season, BAUGH'S RAW BONE SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME as being highly improved.

Baugh's Raw Bone Super Phosphate is, as its name in its leaves, prepared by dissolving Raw Bones in Oil of Vitriol—that is, Bones that have not been deprived of their organic matter, grease and glue—by burning or boiling. It, therefore, presents to the use of the Farmer all the valuable properties of Raw Bones in a highly concentrated form—rendering it at once quick in action and very permanent.

☞ Farmers are recommended to purchase of the dealer located in their neighborhood. In sections where no dealer is yet established, the Phosphate may be procured directly from the undersigned.
